Free Cash in Sharp Drop;
$206,631 Under 1960

The amount of "free cash" in the Town's till as of Jan. 1, 1961, was $626,532.95, as certified by Herman Dine, state director of accounts.

This shows a drop of $206,631 when compared to the 1960 figure.

Yesterday, Town Manager Monahan pointed to the fact that the 1960 Town Meeting had voted to use $100,000 from the fund to help alleviate the tax pie.

He also cited the cost of purchase of the Mystic Valley Gas Co. on Groye st., as a sudden and one-time investment.

Monahan also revealed the astonishing fact that $151,546 of local taxes—real, personal and polls—remain uncollected for 1960. This figure for 1959 was $105,891—a difference of $45,655.

Slowness in sending out commitments for the motor excise tax by the State registry was also a big factor, Monahan said.

A review of free cash:

1956	$350,499.94
1957	675,842.80
1958	892,023.87
1959	874,666.84
1960	626,532.95

Town Buys Used Trucks

Porteus Lashes
At Town Buys

In a release to the Arlington Advocate this week, a Selectman candidate scored what he calls "transgressions against all Arlingtonians."

Bob Porteus said that Arlington taxpayers will be shocked.

The Town has purchased from the City of Somerville 14 pieces of used equipment for a total of $12,600.

Four big Walter snow fighters were obtained, totaling $5,800, three dump trucks $900, five sand spreaders $1000, one tractor $900, one Elgin street sweeper $4,000.

These prices were endorsed by the superintendent of Public Works and the supervisor.

A.H.S. QUINTET, under Coach Lowder, continues its winning ways by downing Newton last week, 66-44. One of five reasons is Leo Scully (23) shown here scoring a 2-pointer.

Manager Explains
Don't Walk Signs

The "walk-don't walk" signals in the Center will be liked by pedestrians after they get used to them, the Town Manager predicted this week.

The old-fashioned red and yellow intervals stopped all the traffic, in every direction, he pointed out.

"The new signals allow the passage of a greater number of vehicles in a given time," he said.

The timing sequence shows a green "walk" for a few seconds when no vehicles will be moving at the crosswalks. The Bottom of World

Robert J. O'Neil, utilities man second class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. O'Neil of 28 Brattle ter., serving with the Antarctic Naval Support Forces at the bottom of the world, is scheduled to spend the next year at Byrd Station, Antarctica.

He is one of ten Navy personnel assigned to maintain the station during the 1961 scientific research program.

Six months of the year will be spent in complete isolation, with radio serving as their only means of contact with the outside world.

A total of 25 candidates filed nomination papers with the Town Clerk before Monday's 5 p.m. deadline.

This is believed to be a record—at least in this present era.

An amazing number of 13 filed for Selectman, 3 for Assessor, 5 for School Committee and 4 for Housing Authority.

PAPERS of Paul Russell Campbell, declared candidate for Selectman, were not certified because of the lack of perfect signatures, Town Clerk Ann Mahon announced yesterday.

It is rumored that at least one candidate for Selectman may withdraw. The deadline for formal withdrawals is next Monday at 5 p.m. at the Town Clerk's office.

Selectman Arthur Saul snuffed out any doubts (or hopes by some) that he would not re-run by filing.

All three incumbents on the School Committee—Allen, Kent, Porteus—will seek reelection. Former committee man, Bernard Forest, is seeking to regain his spot.

Fire On Icebreaker

Peter J. Mercurio, fireman apprentice, USCG, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Mercurio of 7 Janet rd., helped combat a fire, Jan. 9, aboard the Coast Guard icebreaker USS Eastwind while participating in Operation Deep Freeze '61 in the Antarctic.

Operation Deep Freeze is a scientific research program conducted by 12 nations in the ice-covered South Polar region.

Damage control and fire-fighting drills held regularly aboard the Eastwind, paid off when a fire broke out in the icebreaker. The fire apparently started in a storeroom and spread to an adjoining compartment.

Within minutes following the alarm, officers and men were at their fire stations battling their way to the area through thick, heavy smoke.

The fire-fighters, wearing oxygen breathing masks,

INCOME TAXES

R. Canavan, C.P.A.

What are medical expenses?

A medical expense is an amount paid for the diagnosis, cure, treatment or prevention of disease. It also includes premiums paid for accident or health insurance and transportation expenses primarily for and essential to medical care. Fees paid to physicians, surgeons, dentists, Christian Science practitioners, nurses (including nurses' board), chiropodists, chiropractors, therapists, and osteopaths; the cost of artificial teeth, eyeglasses (including examination), drugs and medical supplies (including vitamins prescribed by a doctor), hearing aids, etc., are considered medical expenses.

My wife and I are under 65. May I deduct all of our medical expenses on my Federal tax return?

No. Your deduction is limited to that portion of the medical expenses which exceeds 3% of your adjusted gross income. However, in computing medical expenses, amounts paid for medicine and drugs are considered only to the extent that they exceed 1% of your adjusted gross income.

Example: A taxpayer had adjusted gross income in 1960 of $8,000. His expenditures for medicines and drugs were $200, and for all other medical expenses, $700. The total medical expenses, for tax return purposes, would be $920 ($700 plus the expenditures for medicines and drugs in excess of 1% of $8,000, or $120). The taxpayer is entitled to a deduction of $580, ($920 minus 3% of $8,000, or $240).

My wife is 65. May I deduct all of the medical expenses?

The 3% limitation does not apply to you or your wife. This means that you may deduct, subject to the maximum deduction allowable, all of the medical expenses paid by you in 1960 for the care of yourself and your wife. If you paid medical expenses for a dependent, except a parent age 65 or over, you may deduct only that part of these expenses which exceed 3% of your adjusted gross income. In computing medical expenses, amounts paid for medicines and drugs are considered only to the extent that they exceed 1% of your adjusted gross income.

Has there been a change in the medical expense deduction for dependent parents who are 65 or over?

Yes. In 1960 you may deduct, subject to the maximum deductions allowable, all of the medical expenses paid by you for dependent parents who are 65 or over. Remember that drugs and medicines are medical expenses only to the extent they exceed 1% of your adjusted gross income.

What are the maximum deductions for medical expenses?

The deduction for each exemption (excluding the additional exemptions for age and blindness) is limited to $2,500. On a separate return the maximum deduction may not exceed $5,000; on a joint return, return of head-of-household, or return of surviving spouse, the maximum deduction may not exceed $10,000. These maximum deduction limitations do not apply to taxpayers who are at least 65 and are disabled.

What is the maximum medical expense deduction for disabled taxpayers who are 65 or over?

If a taxpayer, or his wife on a joint return, is 65 or over and is disabled, the maximum deduction is $15,000. If both are disabled and 65 or older, the maximum deduction on a joint return is $30,000. However, $15,000 is the maximum amount that can be taken into account for any one taxpayer or his wife.

May I deduct my medical expenses on my 1960 Massachusetts income tax return?

Yes. You may deduct on the Massachusetts return the same amount that you deducted for medical expenses on your Federal return. This deduction is against your income for labor.

Big Tax Bite

Taxpayers of Massachusetts will be called upon to contribute $2.8 billion as their "share" of the Federal budget for fiscal 1962 just submitted by President Eisenhower, the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers estimated last week.

The new Federal budget for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 — the last to be submitted by President Eisenhower — estimates net budget receipts at $82.3 billion, Federal spending at $80.9 billion, with a $1.4 surplus.

These budget totals, of course, are advance estimates to major change by the incoming Kennedy Administration, by action of the Congress on budgetary authorizations, and also by economic developments.

Frank J. Zeo, Executive Director, speaking for the statewide taxpayer organization, also noted that the new budget provides for interest payments of $8.6 billion on the public debt.

See Some Action
By MTA -- Maybe

Arlington got some amount of future action from the M.T.A. this week as a result of the protest letter sent by the Board of Selectmen to Thomas McLernon, M.T.A. head.

In the meantime Arlington commuters were further harassed by MTA strike which started Tuesday morning with no notice. The strike ended Tuesday at 3 p.m. under Gov. Volpe's request for re-arbitration.

Late Monday night Union President Michael J. Gromley was quoted, "We have no plans for a strike at present."

John J. Callahan, transportation manager for the M.T.A., came out to Arlington last Thursday morning to personally confer with the executive secretary to the Board, Frank Nicksay, in an effort to come up with some solutions to the complaints of Arlington commuters.

Nicksay told the Selectmen Monday night that Callahan had promised two additional buses for the evening rush hours from Harvard Square.

He also said that Callahan hoped to have the results of the underground exhaust gas tests within thirty days. Also, an effort to have waiting buses open their doors at Harvard Square was promised by Callahan. While admitting that the bus service has been aggravated by bad weather, Callahan pointed out that the M.T.A. could do nothing about blocked road conditions.

Pleased that the Board's letter had done some good, Selectman Parker pointed out that this was more action than had occurred for some time.

A food sale will be held by the Gardner group.

Over 15 local business and professional men have applied to the Massachusetts Board of Bank Incorporation to charter a new commercial bank in Arlington.

A public hearing is expected to take place at the State House, in March or April.

At that time, facts will be presented by the incorporators of the proposed bank supporting their contention that the public convenience and advantage will be promoted by the establishment of the new commercial bank.

The incorporators, through Attorney George F. Cahill of Boston, cited the fact that there has not been any new commercial banking facilities in Arlington since 1920.

It was pointed out that since 1920, the Town's population has grown 167 per cent and since 1943 the payroll of local business has grown over 420 per cent.

With a population just over 50,000, Arlington is the largest town in Middlesex County and the second largest town in Massachusetts.

Attorney Cahill indicated that the incorporators of the proposed bank have between 8 to 10 locations within the Town under consideration.

The bank will be organized and operated by local residents and business men with local capital.

Attorney Cahill stated that the incorporators of the proposed bank feel that the addition of a locally owned commercial bank will not only provide added conveniences for the people of Arlington but will stimulate local business.

Richard J. Moran of 125 Jason st., was elected vice-president of the senior class at The New Hampton School in New Hampton, N.H.

He was narrowly edged for the office of president in a nip and tuck campaign by Stephen Wise of Yonkers, N.Y.

The son of Dr. and Mrs. Richard J. Moran, he is a post-graduate student at the 140 year old independent prep school. Wise has been at New Hampton for the past 2 years.

Under school election laws the loser is automatically named vice president.

Wise and Moran will soon name a secretary and treasurer for the class of 75 members.

PUBLIC is invited to attend a gala Mardi Gras party to be held by the Auxiliary on Feb. 4th in Legion hall, Arlington. Co-chairmen are Mrs. Barbara Rotsart and Mrs. Jane Tibur.

Let Us All Answer The Call

The speeches of President Kennedy have stirred the country — and this, probably, is an understatement. We join the millions of Americans in this feeling.

We, therefore, take this wonderful occasion for a few words of caution.

We recall the famous statements of F.D.R., particularly the one on "fear." Let us remember the sweep of confidence given Harry Truman when the mantle of Presidency fell suddenly on his shoulders. Let us not forget the tremendous outpouring of love and goodwill which was given World Hero "Ike."

And what happened? No, not nothing! Yet, the same muddling and terrible mistakes; the same scandals in political, business, labor fields; the same fast buck and sly tactics; the same bigotry and selfishness.

In the year 1961, Kennedy has again sounded the clarion call. We should — all of us — respond with sincerity and action, not just listen and nod.

Good government stems first from the street, district, town and city — not the entire country. What are we doing, going to do about the President's call that:

— a department head will be judged by his accomplishments, not the size of his staff or scope of his job;

— an employee of the government, high or low in rank, will be expected to give to the best of his or her ability.

Let's answer the call — right here in Arlington — just as our forebears did on April 19th, 1775!

State Spending More Than Intake

There's a striking parallel between state government spending in Massachusetts and the fat lady in the circus. Each needs a stringent diet to get into the proper size and shape to insure a healthy future.

Gov. Volpe recognized this basic fact when he described his first state budget as "a tight budget...pared of all necessary fat." And "fat," whether referring to state fiscal matters or the individual citizen, can be deadly.

The new chief executive presented a sky-high budget at $481.2-million the biggest in the history of the Commonwealth. In fairness to Volpe, it must be noted that this was inevitable due to rising costs, fixed expenses and other factors prevalent even before the governor took office.

Gov. Volpe told legislators he expected annual departmental fees to increase by $3-million and that he's optimistic that departmental spending can be chopped some $4-million. "We will live within our income," he promised.

In considering the budget, it is well to realize one simple, inescapable fact. That is this — that our state government is spending more than it is taking in. As a result, it's imperative to eye dollars with the same determination the avid dieter regards calories. In this manner, and only in this way, can the fat be trimmed away and the ship of state, Massachusetts-style, become trim and shapely again.

Granted, it's a large order but it's a goal that must be achieved to stave off what otherwise would be financial chaos for our state. Perhaps, this chaos is already here — or, at least, just around the corner. Witness the fact that late last year the State was unable to float an $80 million bond issue at fair interest rates. The bid was withdrawn and one for only $43 million was floated.

The Old Story...Of Foolishness

The South Dakota Legislature again is confronted by a bill to outlaw trading stamps.

It will get precisely nowhere — and that, of course, should be its fate.

The trouble with Legislatures — and one of the reasons why they are usually swamped with work — is that they become imbued with a desire to regulate and control everything under the sun.

Someone, for example, doesn't like trading stamps. So he wants to abolish them. He says there should be a law against them.

Well, trading stamps are just one of many efforts made in business to induce trade. If the Legislature is to go into the task of controlling practices such as this, it will more than have its hands full.

One merchant may feel that his competitor is too liberal in respect to credit. Another may assume he is being hurt because his competitor reduces prices or gives premiums or provides free delivery. Or he may be annoyed because he remains open for more hours. And there may be complaints that one merchant spends too much money for advertising or offers a second product at a reduced price with the purchase of another.

The list of potential complaints is long. Included as well might be free parking or bus fares that some merchants provide. Others make alterations for free. Some charge for credit and some don't.

All of these activities are a part of the American free economy — the type of economy that has made this nation the most abundant and the most enterprising in the world. To place it in a straitjacket — as some legislators occasionally try to do — would be to kill the competitive spirit.

The sole purpose of the Legislature in respect to business should be to see that its freedom is respected and that deceptive practices are controlled.

It is proper, for example, for the Legislature to say that a garment offered for sale should be accurately identified in respect to material and quality. But it is highly out of order — and extremely objectionable — for the Legislature to specify the price at which it is to be sold, whether or not credit can be offered and what, if any, charges should be made for alterations.

And certainly it isn't its function to determine whether or not trading stamps should be issued.

To the editor:

How many complaints would be registered by the adult citizens of Arlington if the downtown sidewalks were not cleared of snow?

The hazards there would be obvious and noted by all. Something should be done about the situation.

Yet our children walk to school in the streets day after day because homeowners have failed to shovel the walks in front of their homes. Who complains? The children? No, and nothing is done about a very serious safety hazard.

There is no deliberate attempt by anyone to solve this safety problem. People just do not realize what the situation is unless they walk under dangerous conditions themselves, and a good many people do not walk in this weather.

Homeowners with children are probably just as guilty as others of negligence in clearing their sidewalks. How can we be so thoughtless?

Sincerely,
Virginia B. Hutton

To the editor,

Again we hear complaints about the miserable service (?) in Arlington provided by our so called modern MTA.

The answer lies not in bettering the bus service, which is inadequate, but in establishing a rail rapid transit system. Such a system I advocated in my letter to this newspaper on March 5, 1959.

Rail rapid transit cars can seat two bus loads of people and can accommodate more standees than any bus ever constructed. Such vehicles, running on their own right of way, are free from any difficulties posed by traffic and weather.

With their underground stations located beneath the surface of the street, passengers are protected from storms and such stations could be heated in the winter. Where a tunnel could be replaced by running these rapid transit trains on unused railroad right of way, such as we have here in Arlington, enclosed stations could be constructed.

Thus, complaints about standing out in storms and in the street can be eliminated. Such trains could be run on a frequent schedule and would attract more passengers and perhaps decrease the deficit. Also, replacing the slow moving busses on our main streets would help to solve the traffic situation here.

If our public officials are as concerned as they say they are, they should consider this answer and not seek to add to our traffic worries by dumping more slow moving vehicles on our streets.

The MTA cannot solve traffic problems created by the motorist, that isn't their concern. Our public officials are responsible for roads and traffic, let them cure it.

As for the MTA, let them cure transit woes, not traffic woes.

Yours truly,
Samuel R. Ganczaruk

That Man About Town

By MAT

This town has gone politically pop-eyed! No less than 13 have filed for Selectman (and that number is going to be unlucky for all but 2). This is ridiculous.

Even more ridiculous — from the Republican standpoint — is the late entry of William A. Barnstead. Here is the chairman of the Republican Town committee (Barnstead) striving to knock out a political bedfellow, the State Republican committee-man (Porteus). Amazing!

The resulting schism will be something to watch. Naturally, one reason for this move is that some Republicans feel Porteus is too young and could not have been a winner. But, if too young, etc., where were they in the pre-Primaries when Bob P. got himself elected? If he's too young or deemed too erratic for Town affairs, what about at the State level?

Readers should not construe this as any support for young Bob. We just shudder at stupid politics — further, putting town politics on a party feud basis.

This all puts Phil Pelligrini — in our opinion, a qualified candidate — in pretty good shape. There could be others, equally qualified or more so, but we'll have to wait and see.

The candidacies of "Led" O'Connell, "Dan" Purcell and "Tommy" Rawson stand out, too. Among the others, there may appear a true "dark horse" for the 2nd spot — with Selectman Arthur Saul a shoo-in for re-election.

A surprise candidate for Assessor is Ralph G. Picardi of 32 Carl rd. (Prec. 11). He filed on Monday. He took out papers on Friday of last week.

On Monday we are told he (or a friend) called the Advocate and had the courtesy to outline Picardi's background — and quite a one it appears to be!

We understand that he is chief estimator and cost engineer for a metal fabricating firm and the founder of the American Ass'n of Cost Engineers. (which in itself must attest to character) and holds a real estate broker's license, although he no longer practices in that field.

Speaking of qualified candidates, we have glanced over the boss' shoulder to read (or try to) some of the so-called "news" releases. Much of it is sheer baloney.

But, more to the point, several releases are marvelous demonstrations of ignorance. A native of our fair land with free education — even night schools — who cannot spell simple 4th grade words, who cannot construct one sentence out of three and then seeks high Town office is betraying the "peepul" he so boastfully seeks to protect and represent. Let him stay in his own, narrow niche.

We admire the man who has pulled himself by "his own bootstraps" — particularly if he stays in his own shoes and keeps out of those of other citizens.

Of course, some of this idiotic stuff should be published word-for-word. But what good would that do? Soon, they would catch on and ask some educated friend to ghost write. As a matter of fact, there are people, currently holding high office, who have never themselves written "a release to the press." They can't.

Also, not many people realize that printing, verbatim, a letter, etc., from an illiterate has resulted in successful libel suits on the grounds of holding the writer in "public ridicule and scorn." However, for a person, seeking public office, to win in the courts would be about impossible.

THUMBNAILED THOUGHTS

A wholesaler in Chicago trained his pet crow to yell "Spend money!" when a customer arrived. We could use one on Beacon Hill that shouts, "Stop padding the payroll!"

Much is owed to the men who pioneered the automobile industry. They gave the American male one place where he can put his foot down.

Massachusetts boasts two types of the female species — those men look around at and those they look up to.

So if bullheadedness and conceit are diseases, why aren't they covered by Blue-Cross - Blue - Shield? Curing either is an expensive, time-consuming proposition.

The freeway-toll road dispute may not be resolved but we must grant at least that it's chock full of partisan oratory.

POLICE CHIEF Ryan has recommended that there be no parking on either side of Mystic st. for 75 feet beyond the Chestnut st. intersection. Flow of traffic has been slowed as the result of parking in this area, he said.

Two beautiful, pedigreed Siamese cats were killed on Crosby st last week by one of your speedsters.

Naturally, we couldn't expect you to stop — while on your important, personal mission.

Our avenue presented a truly beautiful appearance when the sun shone out last Saturday morning. The trees were covered with a thick coating of ice that sparkled like diamonds. Many fruit trees were broken by the weight of the ice, but the shade trees along our streets did not suffer from that cause.

Mr. George Law owned the old horse that was left on Summer st. last week. He was not to blame for the delay in moving the animal, but it was cruelty to allow him to lay so long exposed. The animal should have been shot at once.

BOSTON — Gov. John A. Volpe may be playing Russian roulette with his political future unless his calculated gamble against imposing new taxes this year pays off.

When he presented his record-busting $487.2-million budget to the General Court last month, Volpe stated flatly: "All funds are balanced without new taxes." This is a true statement, but, like an iceberg, there's much below the surface to cause future trouble.

Politically speaking, there is a solid possibility that Volpe erred badly.

The fact of the matter is that the governor may be faced with the difficult job of imposing new taxes next year — and 1962 is an election year. Former governors can testify that if taxes must be imposed, it is better by far to ram them through in an off-year — and keep your fingers crossed that the voters forget by election time.

This year's budget, while hitting a new high, was balanced despite the fact that expenditures beyond Volpe's control hiked the budget nearly $20-million above current appropriations.

Volpe's decision to forego a tax hike this year was a difficult one. He was faced with a twin-pronged problem — honor his pledge to the voters of "no new taxes," or make the politically-expedient move of hiking taxes in a "safe" off-year.

The tax bugaboo always is a vexing one, particularly for a new governor who must campaign for re-election in two-years time. Bad timing can kill off a promising political career, or sidetrack it for some years.

The state's last two Democratic governors each had damaging after-effects directly traceable to tax problems. Former Gov. Foster Furcolo caused a schism within Democratic ranks by his advocacy of a sales tax, and his resultant difficulties stemmed, in large measure, from this. Further, ex-Gov. Paul A. Dever was defeated for a third term in 1952, and, to a degree, a tax increase enacted in mid-November during a marathon legislative session, the previous year was responsible. Republicans pumped enough adrenalin into this issue via repeal proposals to keep it alive for the next state-wide election.

Time alone will tell whether Gov. Volpe erred, or achieved a political coup, by not imposing new taxes this year.

crowd was in militant mood and speakers freely expressed their ideas in spite of the fact that chairman Joseph Purcell announced that the company had petitioned to "respectfully withdraw its petition without prejudice."

One Year Ago This Week
Old Man Winter has been kind to the Town pocketbook, so far, anyway. Snow removal cost for the first three weeks in January have been $14,000, said the Town Manager this week.

"It has been an unusual winter," Monahan declared, "and this amount of money is fabulously low."

Taxpayers say, amen.

rent appropriations. This year's operating loss, Volpe estimates, will be roughly $16-million. So obviously the state is spending more than it is taking in under the present tax structure.

Volpe didn't use political legerdemain in his "balancing" act. He used surplus funds to make up the difference between income and outgo — the same method used in recent years by his predecessor. These surpluses were created by the 1959 withholding tax windfall.

Volpe "guesstimates" that the surplus at the end of the next fiscal year will be under $3-million and that means there will be no fat surplus to enable him to balance next year's budget.

Therefore, by not imposing new taxes this year Volpe is gambling that revenue from existing taxes will hike upwards and/or that huge economies will be effected in the operation of the state government.

If the governor has guessed wrong, it's virtually a certainty that he'll face the politically unhealthy job of proposing a tax increase in 1962, an election year.

Obviously, Volpe and his advisors (and they're exceptionally capable) feel available revenue next year will suffice to balance the budget. If they're right, Volpe will be off and running in good form, either for re-election as chief executive, or possibly for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Sen. Benjamin Smith. If wrong, Volpe has played Russian roulette and used a gun with bullets in all the chambers.

Volpe's decision to forego a tax hike this year was a difficult one. He was faced with a twin-pronged problem — honor his pledge to the voters of "no new taxes," or make the politically-expedient move of hiking taxes in a "safe" off-year.

The tax bugaboo always is a vexing one, particularly for a new governor who must campaign for re-election in two-years time. Bad timing can kill off a promising political career, or sidetrack it for some years.

CHRISTMAS CHEER

On Christmas day in Bethlehem, trucks of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency rolled into the town where Christ was born, bringing supplies "more precious than the refugees' rations," a delayed report from the agency announces. They brought water for distribution among the population, tormented by two years of parching drought in Jordan.

The little community has become economically stagnant since the demarcation line cut off the straight paved road which used to connect it with its natural economic neighbor, Jerusalem, in five minutes, and the bus route on a detour winding through terraced, blanching hills now requires thirty minutes. Since 1948, when Bethlehem opened its doors to thousands more than those already living there in camps, the community counts 10,000 refugees drawing rations within its boundaries.

EVOLUTION

The World's first international biological station is now developing in the Galapagos Isles, a unique wild-life preserve of Ecuador. UNESCO announced a $6500 grant made to the new Darwin Foundation which, headed by Sir Julian Huxley, will build laboratories on the island for the purpose, among others, of making a census of animals threatened with extinction.

U. S. STAMPS

Since establishment of the United Nations Postal Administration in 1951, approximately 274,000 stamps and items of postal stationery have been printed, according to an estimate made last week. Gross revenue from philatelic sales has in the interim reached almost $10,000,000, and will be augmented in 1961, it is estimated, by another $1,500,000.

The figures are exclusive of stamps used on official and visitors' mail, since the United States Postal Office Department is reimbursed for all postage dispatched from the headquarters of the United Nations. In 1960 alone, the reimbursement amounted to more than $450,000.

EXPECTANCY RISING

Recent studies by the Population Commission of the United Nations have indicated important gains in average life expectancy, in the 20-year span from prewar years through most of the postwar period. Marked decreases in mortality rates in many countries are the basis for the improvement, the commission notes.

In North America, Australia, New Zealand and most countries of Northern and Western Europe, expectation of life rose from 60 or more years in 1937 to 65 to 74 years, in 1957. For India, Mexico and many other countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America, prewar expectation of life was below 40 years. India as a whole does not appear to have advanced much beyond that point, the commission said, but Mexico gained 10 years between 1940 and 1950, and Mauritius 18 years. In countries of this group where progress has been most definite, expectation of life at birth now ranges from 50 to 59 years.

SOLDIERS' GIFT

A maternity hospital and baby clinic, was the welcome Christmas gift from 800 Canadian soldiers serving with the UN Emergency Force in the Middle East to their Palestine refugee neighbors. The hospital will be a permanent memorial to the troops, doing "untold good over the years," said the Canadian UNEF troop commander.

SERIES ON UN

Alistair Cooke, host of Omnibus, will personally conduct a series of TV tours in and out of the United Nations, so that the American public may get a close-up glimpse of the workings of the international organization. Titled "International Zone," the programs will feature human interest stories concerning delegates, interpreters, UN soldiers, international personalities and problems, both at headquarters and abroad. "We hope to get people genuinely interested in the United Nations and what it does," said Mr. Cooke. Backed by the United States Broadcasting Committee for the United Nations, the 13-program series will be produced under the supervision and in UN television studios. Check local newspapers for time of release.

FILM IN MAKING

Terence MacArtney-Filgate of Canada has arrived in Beirut to begin work on a color film on Palestine refugees in the Near East. The documentary will depict the work of the teams of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency there. Its director was awarded a Grand Prix at the 1960 film festival in Cannes, for "The Back-Breaking Leaf," a similar feature about migrant tobacco workers in Canada.

Plan Conclave

Samuel Pando, presiding minister of the Arlington congregation announced this week that Jehovah's Witnesses will hold a semi-annual religious conference in Manchester, N.H., at the National Guard Armory, Feb. 17-19.

According to Mr. Pando, the theme of the assembly will be "Be Taught by Jehovah," and it will provide a three-day refresher course for ministers and Bible students.

Most instruction provided during the event will emphasize the teaching method used by Jesus Christ. It will also show how ministers and Bible teachers may adhere more closely to the personal contact type of education established by Jesus and his apostles," Mr. Pando said.

About 1800 ministers, Bible students and their families are expected to attend from Northeastern Massachusetts and Southern New Hampshire. Salvatore Belfiore, Watchtower Society representative and circuit director of ministers, will be the convention program director.

Frank Spacil, Northeastern United States supervisor of ministers, will be the featured speaker. The climax of the convention will come with his public Bible lecture on Sunday at 3 p.m. entitled "Is God Interested in the Affairs of Men?"

Local members of the congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses who are assigned to various assembly departments are Samuel Pando, 57 Park ave., and William Haxton, 43 Dothan st.

PEE WEE HOCKEY

Red Wings 3, Canadiens 3 — John Deveau's 15 foot screamer in the closing moments of the game enabled the Canadiens to tie the scrappy Wings. The Wings went ahead late in the game when Bob Heavren took a pass-up from Bob Blouin, faked the Canadian goalie out, and tucked the puck in the corner. Mike O'Leary and Jack Regan also scored for the Wings assisted by Mark Murphy and Bob Heavren.

Dick Russo and Deveau tallied the other markers for the Canadiens. Russo, Deveau and Gordie Howell also earned assists.

Maple Leafs 4, Rangers 0 — The Leafs first line of Dolan, Ronan and Briand accounted for all the goals as the Leafs rolled over the Rangers 4-0. Ed Ronan scored two; Dolan and Briand each had one. Dolan and Briand also picked up two assists.

Black Hawks 1, Maroons 2 — Dan Grannan jumped on a loose puck at the Hawk's blue line and swung in close to beat the Hawk's goalie with the winning goal. Bill Shea put the Hawks in the game with a long shot that caught the corner.

Fred Holway had given the Maroons an early lead with a close up blast. Bob McGill-vray made several sensational stops in the Maroon cage.

Bruins 1, Rockets 2 — In a nip and tuck affair the Rockets edged the Bruins 2-1. Roger Kelley was the big gun for the Rockets scoring both goals. His winning goal was the result of a brilliant solo dash.

Paul Ciampa scored his first goal of the season for the Bruins assisted by Jeff Guiney.

The J.V. team was narrowly beaten by the Belmont J.V.'s 12-10.

The Boys' basketball team chalked up 2 more victories this week. On Tuesday they trounced Cambridge Latin 52-20, and on Friday afternoon the team, spurred on by an enthusiastic capacity crowd, defeated Newton South 66-44.

'61 BUICK DESIGN CITED

by Decorators Institute!

We quote from the industry's national publication, AUTOMOTIVE NEWS, January 9, 1961, issue:

"CHICAGO — Buick received one of the 42 prizes awarded last week by the American Institute of Decorators. The AID said it was the first time it had singled out an automobile for a special citation in its annual design award program.

"The citation said Buick was 'selected for distinguished car design and outstanding contribution to interior comfort.' It was presented in the AID category of 'research and development' in the interior furnishings field."

Board Plans Laid For Study Groups

"Try your hand at do-it-yourself foreign policy making by joining a 'DECISIONS 1961' discussion group," suggests Mrs. Mark Bradford.

Mrs. Bradford is Arlington chairman for the annual Decisions discussion series on world affairs conducted each year nationwide during February and March. Five groups have already been formed and more are being considered.

The discussion groups meet weekly informally to discuss specific problems on the basis of concise background material supplied in a kit by the World Affairs Council. Coordinated with these neighborhood groups, is a television program broadcast over Channel 2 from 8 to 9 p.m. on Thursday nights beginning February 9.

Well known authorities will discuss the issue of the week for the first half hour, then answer questions telephoned to the studio for the remainder of the period.

"Each Fact Sheet kit contains in addition to reading and discussing materials, a special opinion ballot for each discussion topic. Each member of the group fills out his or her own ballot, registering individual opinions. Complete instructions are printed on each ballot explaining how to get your opinions in the hands of local Congressmen and Senators, and to the Office of Public Services of the U.S. Department of State," Mrs. Bradford explained.

President Kennedy last week wrote the World Affairs Council, "I am most happy once again to send you my strongest endorsement of this program series and to express my interest in the result you have obtained through citizen participation and balloting."

Among those forming groups in this area are Mrs. George Blackwood, 96 Columbia rd., who will act as hostess for anyone interested on Friday mornings; Mrs. James Daily and Mrs. Gordon Thompson, co-sponsors for a group which will meet at the Pleasant Street Congregational Church on Thursday evenings with all townspeople invited; also on Thursday evening, a group at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Whitman Stevens of 11 Alton st.

The Arlington Woman's club is sponsoring two groups, one on Monday morning at the home of Mrs. Einar Larsen, conducted by Mrs. Amerigo Chaves, and another on Wednesday morning conducted by Mrs. S. Peter Tassinari at her home.

It is not necessary to be a member of the Woman's Club to join one of these groups.

The first topic to be discussed the week of February 5 is "Deadlock Over Germany."

In the following weeks topics will include: Soviet Challenge & World Leadership, France and Western Unity, Japan-Future of an Ally, South Africa and an Explosive Continent, The Americas in Jeopardy, Arms and Survival, and finally the week of March 25, Blueprints for the World Economy.

AT P.T.A. CONGRESS

About 800 delegates attended the day-long conference which had as its theme, "P.T.A. at Work."

"What Shall We Do About Driver Education?" was discussed by a panel.

"Local parent-teacher associations have been concerned for some time over the various problems involved in the safety of young drivers," said Mrs. Edward F. Ryan, of Manchester, president of the Congress.

"Most of us agree that driver education goes a long way to ensure their safety, and we hoped this afternoon to give our parents and teachers an opportunity to help in reaching a proper solution."

AT NIKE BASE

Army Sgt. Lloyd R. Hamilton, son of Mrs. Mildred J. Masters, 39 Tanager st., was assigned to the 47th Artillery Brigade at Fort MacArthur, Calif., Jan. 20.

The brigade, with headquarters at Fort MacArthur, is responsible for the operation of all Army air defense weapons in the Southern California area.

The principle weapons which defend such cities as Los Angeles from enemy air attack are the Nike Ajax and the nuclear-capable Nike Hercules guided missiles. The Nike Hercules missile is capable of destroying any enemy aircraft known today and its speed, altitude and range enable it to knock down any aircraft that may be designed in the foreseeable future, it is claimed.

Sergeant Hamilton, a teletype operator in the brigade's Headquarters Battery, entered the Army in 1951.

His wife, Koto, lives in San Pedro, Calif.

MILADY'S HATS were on display at a recent hat fashion show, sponsored by the Catholic Woman's club. Seated (l. to r.) are Mrs. Nichols and Mrs. Pasquale; standing, Miss Eunice Maletta, Miss Cynthia Ham, Mrs. Richard Carter, Mrs. R. J. Maletta.

New, "Old" Resident.

A long-tailed animal that can trace its ancestry in unbroken line back to the prehistoric past has taken up temporary residence in the animal room at Boston's Museum of Science.

Seventy million years ago its forefathers roamed the North American continent. Remarkably like some of our present-day marsupials, they lived out their lives among dinosaurs and other long-gone inhabitants of the late Mesozoic era, or Age of Reptiles.

The intriguing animal, whose other chief claim to distinction is that it is the only North American mammal with a pouch to carry its young, is a full-grown opossum.

While not rare in the New England area it is still uncommon enough to excite curiosity about its habits and appearance.

"Posy" came to the Museum of Science via the Blue Hills Trailside Museum, which has been closed for the winter. This Museum, in turn, received it as a gift from the Mt. Tom Trailside Museum in Western Massachusetts.

As a marsupial, he is one of the most primitive of the mammals. Marsupials are found today only in the Americas, and in Australia and its environs. They include the kangaroo, the koala bear, and the Tasmanian wolf.

In this country opossums are most common in the Southern States, although they have gradually been extending their range northward. They have been reported occasionally in Maine, but more often in Connecticut and Western Massachusetts.

About as big as a rabbit, they have tapering, rat-like faces covered with fur much lighter than on their grayish-brown bodies. Their long, bare, prehensile tails, like those on monkeys, aid them in climbing, as do their hindfeet, which have five toes. One of these toes is extra-large, clawless, and opposable, like our thumb. This unusual footprint makes it easy to identify opossum tracks in the wilderness.

The mother opossum often bears as many as eighteen young, which are so tiny when born that one is about the size of a bee.

Immediately after birth they climb into the mother's pouch, where they are nursed for the next two months. Since the mother can nurse only 13, however, any above that number do not survive.

When the baby opossums emerge from the pouch two months later, their first act is to climb onto their mother's back to view the big outside world.

Opossums are not very bright, but they have a defense mechanism which seems to have stood them in good stead through the centuries in their fight for survival. In order to escape those of their enemies that will touch only living food they sometimes "play dead" by lying down, going limp, shutting their eyes, and sticking out their tongue. Some of the animals that consider the opossum fair prey are foxes, wolves, dogs, and owls.

Prizes at the State level consist of cash awards of $100 and $25 to the first and second place winners.

Opossums will eat anything they can catch or find, and it has been said of them that eating is a gastronomical pleasure.

Posy will remain in the Museum's Animal Room for the next few months, making appearances at special young people's programs for members. It is expected that it will return to its Blue Hills home next spring.
